Permo air roofing underlay performance top of the class

Permo[®] air, the most breathable air-open roofing underlay available, has been used in the refurbishment of Islington Arts and Media School. The late Victorian building had been in need of complete refurbishment and was targetted to achieve a BREEAM 'Very good' rating. Mark Walker of BDP Architects commented, "We needed an air open roofing underlay to solve the problems posed by the existing roof construction and Permo air's performance met our requirements. We also found that Klover's technical support set it apart from other roofing manufacturers, not least because they provided us with U-value calculations and a condensation risk analysis".
